" Evening Gazette," writes as follows from therefore send you six thousand dollars to Berlin, under date of July 24th: "I spent a arrange your affairs, in the hope that this pleasant day at Potsdam and visited the tomb sum will be sufficient for the purpose. of Frederic the Great, and the famous gardens and palaces of Sans Souci. The old neighbor, windmill is still standing in perfect repair, and belongs to the descendants of the miller who refused to give it up to Frederic." The following anecdote explains this remark. Near Potsdam, in the regin of Frederic the Great was a mill which interfered with the view from the windows of Sans Souci. Annoyed by this eye-sore to his favorite residence, the King sent to inquire the price for which the mill would be sold by its owner. "For no price," was the reply of the sturdy Prussian;—and in a moment of anger, Frederic gave orders to have it pulled down. The King may do this said the miller, quietly folding his arms, " but there are laws in Prussia," and forthwith he commenced proceedings against the monarch; the result of which was, that the court sentenced Frederic to rebuild the mill, and to pay a large sum of tles.' money as compensation for the injury which "I he had done.

The king was mortified, but he said to his courtiers, "I am glad to see that just laws and upright judges exist in my kingdom."

The above anecdote is well known to every reader of Prussian history, but is necessary to be related here, as an introduction to what follows.

About three years ago, the present head of the honest miller's family, (his name is Frank) who succeeded to the possession of his little estate, finding himself after a long struggle with losses, occasioned by that war which involved in pecuniary difficulties almost insurmountable, wrote to the king of Prussia reminding him of the refusal experienced by Frederic the Great at the hand of his ancestor, and stating that if his Market and Stuff. tor, and stating that if his Majesty now en-tertained a similar desire to obtain possession of the property, it would be very for cash or to punctual customers. Apply at agreeable to him, in his present emagreeable to him, in his present embarassed circumstances, to sell the mill.-The king wrote immediately with his own hand, the following reply;—

" My dear neighbor, I cannot allow you to sell the mill; it must remain in your possession as long as one member of your family exists, for it belongs to the history of Prussia. I lament however, to hear that you

CONGRESSIONAL INTELLIGENCER.

The proprietors of the NATIONAL INTELLIGEN-CER, in order to meet the wishes of those whose circumstances or inclination do not allow them to subscribe even to a weekly Washington paper during the whole year, have determined to issue during each session of Congress, a weekly sheet styled "The Congressional Intelligencer," to be devoted exclusively to the publication, as far as its limits will permit, of the Proceedings of both Houses of Congress, and Official Reports and Documents connected therewith, including a complete official copy of all Acts passed by Congress du-ring the session.

To bring the price within the means of every

To bring the price within the means of every man who can read, the charge for this paper will be for the first session of each Congress One Dollar, and for the second session of each Congress half a Dollar.

The price of the Congressional Intelligencer, to be issued on each Wednesday during the approaching Session of Congress, will therefore be One Dollar paid in advance.

To enlarge upon the value, to those who take no newspaper from Washington, of this publication, containing an impartial but necessarily abbreviated account of the Proceedings in Congress, including an authentic official copy of all the laws viated account of the Proceedings in Congress, including an authentic official copy of all the laws passed during the session, would be needless. The man who takes no such paper ought to take one, if he does not prefer remaining ignorant of what most nearly concerns his own destiny, and that of his family and of his posterity for ever.

Lywhen six copies are ordered and paid for by any one person, a deduction of one-sixth will be made from the price, that is to say, a remittance of Five Dollars wil command six copies of the Congressional Intelligencer for the next Session. A remittance of Ten Dollars will secure thirteen copies; and for Fifteen Dollars remitted from any one person or place twenty copies will be forone person or place twenty copies will be for-
